Large Crowd from Bryan and College
Expected to Attend Game
in Houston.

With her contest with the Pelicans from the Louisiana State University at Houston on Turkey Day, the Texas A. and M. College witnesses the close of her football season for 1913. Little wonder then that the Aggies are exerting almost superhuman effort to get in readiness for this contest and little wonder that they say it's a fight to the end in the Thanksgiving Day struggle. A. and M. College has always been known for the fight that her men had in them, and Moran says that Thursday will be no exception. It doesn't look a bit good for the Aggies, but a weaker team with more determination and fight many times has whipped a stronger team that had less fight, and so the Aggies lack much of having given up the ghost.

There will be a wild scramble when the conductor calls "All aboard!" for the Houston special Thursday morning at 7:10 o'clock at College Station. The special will leave Bryan at 7 o'clock and a goodly patronage from the local supporters of A. and M. is expected. An attendance of about two hundred cadets is expected, and in addition many campus residents and employees of the college will make the trip. Cadets having permission from home are permitted to make the trip, but the corps will not go under arms. But those who don't go will be watching and waiting.

Moran has made a number of changes in his line-up and he will probably start the game with the fleet-footed Johnnie Garrity, who, with Bonner, has played consistent ball at quarter, as an end. Garrity will replace Mullen, a good man, but a slow man. Powell, who has starred as center, will work at guard, and Cawthon, a second string center, will probably relieve him at the middle peg.

Moran has been giving his men some new plays and working them overtime on old ones, and the squad is ready for the fight.

You can generally measure a man's community activity by the number of men who hold him in high esteem.
